

JAP CABINET CONSIDERS FOOD PROBLEM

Meandering

By WASH FAYETTE

You folks who have had occasion to visit any, or many of the large cities in recent months, know of the long lines waiting to be served at the popular cafeterias and other dining rooms.

Recently in a southern city I saw 400 people waiting in line at one of the big cafeterias, and in Cincinnati and Columbus recently I saw the lines of hungry folks backed the full length of the dining room, at some of the best cafeterias, and the line extended down the sidewalk for some distance.

Whether the discontinuance of all rationing will make a difference in the lines waiting to enter the dining room, I do not know, but my observation is that there must be greater accommodations generally for the dining public.

Delving into the recesses of my desk I brought to light a paper knife or letter opener bearing the following inscription:

"Made of Duralumin used in the Airship Akron."

Finding the paper knife instantly brought to mind a visit I made to the huge hangar at Akron when the immense motors of the ill-starred dirigible were being tuned up the day before the monster airship made its first trial flight.

There was an air of suppressed excitement about the great air-drome where the ship was built, as the motors were given their try-out and crewmen were at their respective positions to get the "feel" of the ship and see that everything was in readiness for the flight of the 785 foot dirigible.

The Akron was destroyed while in flight a year or two after it was built, and its sister ship the "Macon" was destroyed, over the ocean near the eastern coast during a storm.

Since then only non-rigid dirigibles were built, and these were of small size compared to the two giants that were constructed in the big airdrome at Akron.

Dale Adams, carrier on rural route 3 out of Sabina, calls my attention to what carriers declare is one of the greatest problems confronting rural carriers.

It is nothing more or less than failure of rural patrons to place stamps on their mail; so stamp holders are being provided to encourage them to keep a sufficient supply of stamps on hand for all letters.

"When farmers place unstamped letters, and cards along with money for postage in their mail boxes, the money often becomes lost and the letter is delayed," said a spokesman for the rural carriers, who continues:

"Many times the carrier, rather than delay the mail, pays the postage from his own pocket. In any event there is a delay because the carrier must buy the stamp and place it on the letter after his return to the post office."

DOOMSDAY PROPHECY HAS TO BE REVISED

Preacher Now Says World End May Come Next Year

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 21.—(AP)—Everything was quiet outside the home of the Rev. Charles G. Long today as 7:33 A. M., the hour at which he said the world might dissolve in a cloud of shattered atoms, came and went.

There was no sign of life in the white stucco house as reporters and photographers kept vigil. The shade over the front window was drawn.

A milk man drove by, pulled out his watch and regarded the house quizzically, then drove on. Across the street five curious spectators stood under a tree, waiting, in a misty drizzle.

A few houses away a man trundled out his garbage can on a child's toy wagon.

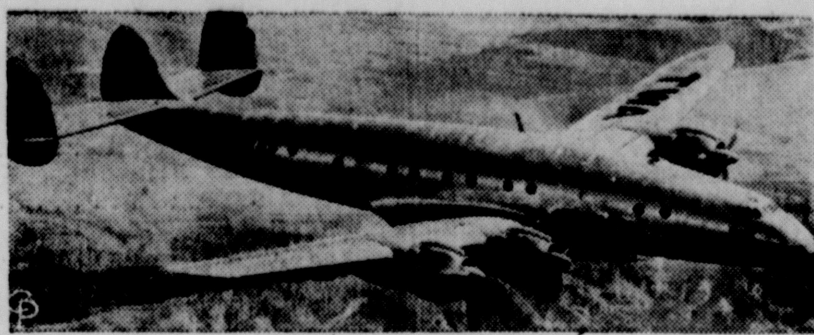

The Rev. M. Long hadn't put out his garbage.

The front door of the residence opened and a man came out. He was not the prophet.

"Good morning," he greeted the newspapermen. "Just stay there all day long."

Then he slammed the door. When an Associated Press reporter pressed the door bell, someone inside pulled aside the curtain over

Lausche in Capital To Try To Get Federal Property

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Ohio's hopes to expand its welfare facilities by leasing federal war installations were a step nearer realization today.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche reported plans to acquire by lease the Scioto Ordnance Works near Marion and The Ravenna Ordnance Works had been referred to The Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Lausche said a conference with Reconstruction Director John W. Snyder disclosed the state had priority by law to take over such federal properties if rental agreements could be reached. He added RFC had authority to fix rentals on a basis of property valuation.

The governor said he also had talked with President Truman about the plans, but added they did not discuss politics.

He told reporters he definitely would not be a senatorial candidate in the 1946 elections.

Lausche gave no indication as to whom he would select to replace Sen. Harold H. Burton in the Senate.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS IN CAROLINA FLOOD

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Cape Fear River, sweeping out of its banks in one of the state's worst floods in years, left thousands homeless today and caused uncounted damage to crops and buildings in this south-central section of North Carolina.

Red Cross officials said the total of persons evacuated from flooded areas was expected to reach at least 3,500 today.

Fayetteville was about 20 to 25 per cent under water, Red Cross workers estimated.

The town of Dunn, about 25 miles northeast of here, converted schools and other public buildings into sanctuaries for evacuees.

TOKYO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The envy of the souvenir hunters in the American Occupation Army is Pfc. Donald Kincaid of Dayton, Ohio, whose prize is General Hideki Tojo's complete set of campaign ribbons—given to Kincaid by the general himself.

Kincaid, a military policeman, was one of the several assigned to stand guard at the bedside of the war-maker after his suicide attempt.

Kincaid said he didn't know why he was singled out to receive the ribbons.

"I been guarding Jap prisoners for 18 months and we treat this guy like all the rest," he said.

Lost GIs Almost Killed By Japs After War Over

By RICHARD BERGHOLZ

MANILA, Sept. 21.—(AP)—A couple of GIs went out for a Sunday boat ride in northern Luzon a month after the war ended, got lost—and were captured by a Japanese and threatened with execution.

They were Oscar F. Carroll, Birmingham, Ala., and Thomas H. Parkinson, Los Angeles, Calif., members of the 37th Infantry Division.

Leisurely paddling a small infantry assault boat, the boys found they had drifted farther than they thought, and were lost.

Hours later they saw a group of men ashore, they said, and shouted for help. Struggling ashore, they found the men were members

Mussolini's Mistress Evil Genius of Italy, Daughter Discloses

ROME, Sept. 21.—(AP)—Countess Edda Ciano says she "loved and admired" her father, Benito Mussolini, even after he put to death her husband, former Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano.

She denied she ever was the "gray eminence" in Fascist politics and said she wanted to live the rest of her days on an island "like an ordinary woman."

The countess was interviewed on Lipari Island where she is interned by the Italian government after being expelled from Switzerland.

"What I want most of all is that my case be settled one way or the other," Countess Ciano said.

Those who know her say her lot is not so hard. She goes where she pleases on the island, smokes American cigarettes and swims in the Mediterranean. Police in charge treat her with respect, these informants say.

The countess wears slacks, a flannel blouse and tennis sneakers when she met correspondents at her villa.

"To tell the truth, I expected something better than Lipari," she said.

Correspondents observed she really was in a very special position and she replied:

"I have always been in a very special position. It will be in a very special position that I will be shot."

"It is my fate that I get the worst news suddenly like an unexpected blow on the head. I was in Switzerland and I turned the radio to the Milan station at exactly the instant it was announced, 'at this moment' an enormous crowd is moving toward the Piazza Loreto to view Mussolini's body."

She said Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress who was slain with the dictator and whose body also was exposed in the Piazza, had a great influence on her father.

"She became the true head of the government," Countess Ciano said, "I hated her because I saw where she was dragging my father."

She asserted Mussolini "intended to turn Italy into a dictatorship" (Please Turn to Page Two)

Occupation Policy Row Clogs Congress Wheels

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Senate entered a three-day cooling off period today in the matter of whether Dean Acheson did or didn't take a verbal crack at General MacArthur.

Senators Wherry (R-Neb) and Chandler (D-Ky) said he did.

They made such an issue of it that Majority Leader Barkley (Ky) recessed the chamber to Monday without acting on a long list of appointments.

Among them was Acheson's promotion to under secretary of state. Barkley told reporters there'll be a peaceful confirmation Monday.

Some question remained in the minds of most senators as to whether Acheson was aiming at MacArthur when he said at a recent news conference the U. S. government, not any officer of the Army or Navy, would fix occupation policies for Japan.

Acheson's comment came after the State Department, the White House and the War Department were caught flat footed by the general's announcement that he probably could keep the Japanese

Big Cities Hardest Hit as Supplies Dwindle in Buying Rush

(By the Associated Press)

Motorists in some Ohio cities, only recently rid of rationing, were feeling the gasoline pinch again today—this time because of a strike which tied up lines in several key cities.

As oil company workers still were off the job in a spreading walkout, Springfield and Toledo reported rapid dwindling supplies will mean most stations closed by noon today in the former and tomorrow in the latter city. Cleveland area's supply was expected to last only a few hours.

Akron gasoline distributors said they had from four days to a month's supply in their storage tanks and local supplies in the Youngstown area were "fairly good," except in isolated cases.

Demands Increase

A heavier-than-usual demand was reported by many stations as motorists rushed to fill their tanks. Youngstown said "a few" motorists were filling emergency cans with gas and oil.

Toledo city officials, labor and industry officials were working out a temporary rationing program to keep essential consumers going, including the issuance of cards to consumers approved by both labor and industry.

The dispute, spreading throughout the midwest and southwest, followed a union demand for 52 hours pay for a 40-hour work week.

Six Toledo warehouses, including two handling retail food products, were closed in a walkout of 300 CIO-United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store employees.

Idle production workers at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.'s Columbus Chemical division returned to work today, ending their eight-day strike over wages and working conditions. The 1300 members of District 50, United Mine Workers, voted to resume negotiations with management.

Cleveland's 73 motion picture theaters, closed for a week by a strike of AFL motion picture operators, reopened. Union officials and exhibitors reached an agreement which reportedly left each projection booth manned by two

JAP WAR PLANS KNOWN TO FDR AND DEWEY KNEW IT BUT KEPT PATRIOTICALLY SILENT, CLAIM

Gop Chairman Says Dewey Sacrificed Chance To Become President Rather Than Let Japs Know Their Secret Code Had Been Cracked

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—John Chamberlain, an editor of Life magazine says in the current issue of the publication that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey knew President Roosevelt was forewarned of the 1941 Japanese attack, but the Republican declined to use his knowledge as a campaign weapon in 1944.

"Dewey... was in a position to charge that the President had 'betrayed' the interests of the U. S. in failing either to forestall or mitigate an attack for which we were, on the certification of General Marshall, not yet ready," Chamberlain said.

"The political impact of such a charge, if supported by the evidence of code-cracking... might well have landed Dewey in the White House."

Chamberlain said Dewey learned long before the 1944 election that America had cracked the Japanese 'ultra' code "some time prior to Pearl Harbor and that Roosevelt and his advisers knew what the Japanese were going to do well in advance of the overt rupture of relations."

In Albany, a spokesman for Dewey said the governor was not available for a statement.

Chamberlain said Dewey's de-

Politics of Leftism Creeping Into Truman Government; CIO in Favored Spot

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Mr. Truman's nominal political mentor, Robert Hannegan, dropped a few words in Missouri which meant more than they seemed to. He said the president was not trying to go "left" or "right," but is only concerned about being "wrong" or "right."

Hannegan had been rather significantly quiet since Truman made a display of keeping Harold Ickes in the cabinet. Ickes is a sort of unofficial chairman of a sort of political party of his own. He is a fire-builder. He builds them front or back. If something to his dislike is being attempted, he has been known to run out and set fire to the CIO, New Dealers, leftwingers and pressure groups in order to smoke the president into doing what he wants. What Ickes would consider an ideal government is one in which he, Hillman and the leftwing column-

NEW PRESS CODE GIVEN TO JAPAN BASED ON TRUTH

Roundup of War Criminals Continues and Occupation By Yanks Extended

TOKYO, Sept. 21.—(AP)—General MacArthur today ordered the "immediate arrest" of Lt. Gen. Kenji Doihara—whose recent appointment to command Japan's first general army was given Allied acceptance—and issued a 10-point code to guide operations of the censored Japanese press and radio.

Japan's cabinet met to discuss problems which well-informed sources said included food shortages and repatriation of Japanese civilians from Manchuria and Korea.

The newspaper Asahi today added another dime-novel thriller to the tales of Japanese surrender-crisis intrigue, reporting former premier Kantaro Suzuki barely escaped with his life from a band of armed Japanese soldiers August 15. The band, evidently angered by surrender plans, machine-gunned two houses from which Suzuki had just departed.

Doihara, once called Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was his country's advance agent in its Asiatic conquest.

His appointment as commander of the first general army, succeeding Field Marshal Gen. Sugiyama who committed suicide, was a surprise to many Japanese, who said his past record was not one to inspire American confidence.

American Army officers said after the conference Doihara had pledged full cooperation.

Truth Press Code Key

General MacArthur's code for the Japanese press specified news "must adhere strictly to the truth" and said "nothing may be printed which might directly or indirectly disturb public tranquility."

American Marines prepared to expand the smoothly running occupation of Japan to the big naval base of Sasebo on Kyushu. The Fifth Amphibious Force is scheduled to take over the base tomorrow.

The only trace of violence in the occupation was an accidental ammunition explosion that killed one American soldier and injured 60 others near Tokyo. Army authorities said an American soldier touched off the blast by accident.

The roundup of war criminals continued, with U. S. Eighth Army forces taking Australian John Holland, allegedly linked with Tokyo radio broadcasts, from a barber shop at Soppo on Hokkaido to join ex-premier Hideki Tojo's "Pearl Harbor Gang" in jail.

MacArthur's headquarters asked the Japanese government for information on the whereabouts and welfare of the Turkish ambassador to Japan and his staff. The ambassador, Ali Muzaffer Goeker, arrived in Tokyo on May 10, 1944. Turkey severed relations with Japan on June 1, 1945, and declared war shortly afterward.

API PRESIDENT SAYS PLANT IS TO REOPEN HERE

C. of C. Told Detroit Plant Operations To Be Moved To Washington C. H.

The plant of Aeronautical Products, Inc., here probably will be opened and will be in operation under the present ownership within 30 days with a force that will be expanded to 500 or 600 people by the first of the coming year, according to an official prediction made this week.

Such was the assurance given by Charles C. Layman, president of the organization at a conference with Chamber of Commerce and Record-Herald representatives, which he had requested to take place in his office at the plant Wednesday.

Coincident with this statement Layman announced that at a meeting of the API board of directors and company executives in Detroit, within the past few days, a decision had been reached to close the Detroit plant of the organization and to center business activities of the corporation in Washington C. H. plant except for a sales office to be maintained in Detroit.

President Layman declared that he made this announcement in order to stop many rumors, which he termed "misleading," as to the future of his organization. He stated that if all present negotiations were concluded as expected, the plant would open with approximately 100 employees on the job within a month and that this force would be increased as rapidly as possible. He said he felt confident that a maximum of 1400 employees would again be working for the API probably within a year.

An important feature of the conference Wednesday was the declaration by Layman that the present ownership was seeking to complete negotiations for the purchase of the entire plant and equipment from the government. He said it was uncertain which of two or more lines of approach to the conclusion of the deal would be followed but that the API organization had first opportunity to buy by exercising its option within a specified time.

He indicated that he had made a number of trips to Washington, D. C. and would be there again in another week in connection with negotiations with The Defense Plant Corporation, The Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the War Department.

Interest in the future of the plant here, the largest local manufacturing outgrowth of the war, has been high ever since the plant closed several weeks ago following the victory over Japan. It began operations in June, 1942 and grew rapidly until it was employing close to 1600 people at one time, many employees being from other nearby cities and villages.

Stating that the company already had some contracts for work lined up, Layman asserted that the plant here, when in operation, would specialize in precision parts for the aircraft and automotive industry, railways, and on washing machine and refrigeration parts.

Present officers of the corporation in addition to President Layman are his brother Byron Layman, secretary-treasurer; E. A. Skae, executive vice president and Edward C. Jonke, vice president in charge of sales. All of this group of officers, according to Layman, will make Washington C. H. their home with the exception of Vice President Skae who will remain in Detroit. He also said that Robert Brown of Detroit, comptroller for the organization, will come here to live as will Adelaide Burns who is the corporation's labor relations representative.

Layman stressed the announcement also that L. W. Turner, who has been factory manager here for some time, will remain with the API in that same capacity.

That the payroll of the API will eventually be approximately as large as it was here in wartime was declared by Layman to be very probable.

The action of the API board of directors in deciding to make Washington C. H. its center of manufacturing activity was due, said Layman, to the fact that this city was regarded as a more desirable location than Detroit, with a good labor market and excellent highway and railway connections. He also cited other advantages.

He asserted that there would be a very carefully worked out plan to be followed in building the working organization of the plant here to avoid the waste and confusion caused in a hurriedly thrown together force of employees such as wartime necessity brought about in many places.

J. EARL McLEAN RESIGNS POST WITH GWINN CO.

Was President and General Manager for Over 14 Years

J. Earl McLean, for 14 years president and general manager of the Gwinn Milling Company, which operates a huge mill and elevator in Columbus and the big elevators here with branches at other points, has resigned.

At a meeting of the board of directors, held in Columbus Thursday, C. E. Gwinn, son of O. E. Gwinn, who was founder and head of the plant that originated in this city, was elected president of the board.

McLean's successor as general manager has not been named. The Gwinn Milling Co. was one of the largest flour and feed producing concerns in Ohio, and during recent years has done much grinding for the government.

McLean said Friday that he has not decided upon future plans. For sometime he has been aiding his son, Willard, in operating the big elevators and feed plant of the company on South Fayette Street, during his son's ill health.

Throughout his years as head of the Gwinn Company, McLean has maintained his residence in Washington C. H., where he will continue to live.

Prior to becoming affiliated with the Gwinn Co. he was head of the old Washington Milling Co. here for many years, and is a veteran in the business.

FAYETTE GRANGE SET AS MODEL BY STATE

After five years of work meeting all the requirements set up by the Ohio State Grange, Fayette Grange has been issued a certificate of honor certifying its qualifications as a model Grange. It was announced at a meeting Thursday night in Memorial Hall.

Horen Hynes, county deputy, rated Fayette Grange with 855 points in an inspection program.

During the lecture hour Mrs. Emma Smeltzer spoke on poultry marketing and Miss Margaret Watson, home demonstration, gave the Grangers an idea of what her work was like. Miss Nancy Lee Hewitt also played a piano solo.

Fayette Grange booster night next Friday was announced.

The Rev. Mr. Long had set another deadline for humanity today. The globe's destruction might be delayed until 5:33 P. M. today or possibly Sept. 29 or even next fall, he said.

A jurisdictional dispute has halted reconversion construction at The Fisher Body Co. plant in Cincinnati. Six hundred members of the local AFL building Trades Council stayed away from their jobs.

At Warren, Common Pleas Judge Lynn B. Griffith, reserving judgment on a contempt petition filed by the Packard Electric Division against four members of the CIO electrical workers, urged company and union attorneys to get their clients together to end the three-week old strike of 3000 workers.

The state's other strikes involved 5000 employees of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation in Cleveland and Lima, 150 AFL Iron Workers at Cincinnati's Newman Bros., Inc., and 1200 employees of Toledo's Unicast Corp. and Toledo Machine and Tool Co.

Elsewhere in Row

As the federal government stepped in to attempt to effect a settlement of the strike started Monday by the oil workers, the stoppages curtailed gasoline supplies in scores of cities and made more than 20,000 workers idle. Elsewhere across the nation, labor disputes kept an additional 200,000 men and women away from jobs.

In the Detroit area, where more than 80,000 of the country's 200,000 idle are out because of strikes and shutdowns, union leaders went ahead with plans for strike votes in plants of the "Big Three"—Chrysler, General Motor and Ford. CIO UAW demands are for a 30 percent wage increase.

WORLD TODAY

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

The Big Five Council of Foreign Ministers in London seems to be moving with determination (though with due caution) for a closer inspection of the several crises in the Balkans—those small but troublesome states which comprise the political atomic bomb of Europe.

The matter of immediate importance is to clear the way for the framing of peace treaties with the Axis satellites—Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania. In the interest of accuracy it should be said that Hungary technically isn't one of the Balkans, but it's a Danubian country and so is generally included.

The situation is difficult and it is delicate, for it presents a sharp clash of views between the Anglo-American Allies and the Russians. Indeed it's so delicate that Allied statesmen have hesitated to give things their true names and have dealt rather in euphemisms. The further the conference of the Big Five ministers proceeds, however, the more openly the matter is being handled.

The background of the whole picture is the emergence of Russia as dominant power of the Eastern Hemisphere. Since the Balkans represent one of the red hot spots it's well for us to get clearly in mind what is involved. To take the lid off the kettle, the position is that the new governments of Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria are strongly Communist, which represents a heavy swing to the left. England and the United States refuse to recognize these regimes, on the ground that they don't represent the people as a whole. Washington and London want fresh elections held under conditions which will guarantee representative governments.

Russia, on the other hand, maintains that the present governments do speak for all the people. Moscow is well satisfied with them—an attitude which is easy to understand, since the Soviet government would indeed display an odd tendency if it went about ousting other Communist regimes.

Naturally this situation has given rise to debate in diplomatic circles whether these Red governments of Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania were in effect installed by Moscow—whether Russia is taking unilateral action in the Balkans. The Soviet answer is that it favors these governments and that they are truly Democratic.

Any way there's no compromise in sight among the Big Three. Uncle Sam and John Bull both insist that peace treaties shouldn't be signed with the present governments. This may hang the treaties up for a considerable time.

And what is likely to be the outcome? Well, I don't think it matters a hill of small potatoes to the final picture what happens to the present governments of Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary. Russia already has established herself as the dominant power of the Balkans, barring Greece and Turkey, where her influence will be strongly felt though they probably will continue to lean towards England.

Now of course acceptance of this viewpoint doesn't mean that America and Britain shouldn't stand fast by their principles and insist on elections in these satellite countries. My point is that no matter how you add it up—whether you have new elections or whether you don't—you will get the same answer, which is that the Balkans already have been incorporated in Moscow's sphere of influence. That's not so surprising when you stop to think that before the war the Balkans (down as far as Greece and Turkey) were in Germany's zone of domination.

BENEFIT AMOUNT DEPENDS UPON EARNINGS MADE

Further Enlightenment About Payments of Unemployed Is Announced

An understanding of the "base period" for claimants is the key to the explanation of how the State Bureau of Unemployment determines weekly benefit payments. Benefit payments in Ohio, under the amended law effective September 5, 1945, range from a minimum of $5 per week to a maximum of $21 per week.

To determine the benefit amount for a claimant, the bureau examines his wage records on file in the central office at Columbus, selecting the quarter in his "base period" in which his earnings were highest. The weekly benefit payment to which he is entitled is then determined from the following table:

$ 40.00-$109.99	$ 5
110.00-132.64	6
132.65-156.24	7
156.25-180.84	8
180.85-206.51	9
206.52-233.32	10
233.33-261.35	11
261.36-290.69	12
290.70-321.42	13
321.43-353.63	14
353.64-387.41	15
387.42-422.87	16
422.88-460.12	17
460.13-499.04	18
499.05-539.99	19
540.00-580.99	20
581.00 and over	21

For example: Assume that an unemployed worker filed his initial valid claim for the calendar week starting August 26, 1945. His "base period" would be the four calendar quarters starting with April, 1944, and ending with March, 1945.

Let us assume further that it was found that in one quarter of his "base period" he earned $455 ($35 per week for 13 weeks), and that this was his highest quarter. Applying these earnings to the benefit schedule it will be seen that this claimant would be entitled to a benefit payment of $17 per week.

Before the claimant will receive any benefit payments, however, he must have reported weekly to the local office of the bureau and been unemployed at least three calendar weeks. The first two weeks of his unemployment count as the required two-weeks waiting period. The third week of unemployment is the first for which he is entitled to a benefit payment. He will receive his first benefit check within two or three weeks after the third week.

After the two-weeks waiting period has expired the claimant can receive benefit payments, if totally unemployed, for as long as 22 weeks. However, if he was employed in only 20 weeks of his "base period" his benefit duration will be limited to 18 weeks, and if employed in more than 20 weeks but less than 25 weeks, he will be limited to 19 weeks of benefit payment. All claimants with 25 or more weeks of employment in their "base periods," can receive benefits for 22 weeks, if their unemployment continues.

As previously mentioned, exceptions to this duration occur in the case of claimants who have voluntarily quit their jobs "without just cause." They are disqualified from any benefits until they have returned to employment and earned at least four times their weekly benefit amount. Furthermore, a claimant who has been discharged "for just cause in connection with his work," is required to serve an additional three weeks of waiting period, and his benefit duration is reduced by six times his weekly benefit amount.

Will Our Oil Last?

How long will our petroleum deposits last? The old-time question comes up again from a disturbing report of the Bituminous Coal Institute. This body of mine operators gives only 15 years of life to our oil reserves. The Institute would comfort us by saying that the soft coal on hand is enough for 3,000 years. But the United States is accustomed to running on petroleum.

Not all authorities would agree with the Institute. Dr. F. B. Plummer of the University of Texas, chairman of a subcommittee of the petroleum division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, says that oil is being recovered from shale in many countries, and that at least 18 states have shale oil in considerable quantity. Oil shales, he thinks, can be relied on to yield almost five times as much as the known oil reserves.

Last year Eugene Holman, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and formerly its chief petroleum geologist, said that alarmist predictions of the rapid disappearance of oil failed to consider new discoveries. Also the war diverted much manpower from oil finding. "In 1926," said Mr. Holman, "a committee of cabinet members reported to President Coolidge that the United States had only enough oil to last another seven years."

Still, even if oil is plentiful, there is no sense in wasting it.

It seems sure now that vast power, power almost inconceivable, will soon be at men's disposal. And the big question is, what will he do with it? So doubtful is the situation at present that our own nation, which has taken world leadership in this quest, is guarding its secrets like those of medieval alchemists. And well it may, as long as such nations as Japan and Germany aim to seize and rule the world by violence, making virtual serfs of their neighbors.

But eventually—and it may not be long—such secrets are sure to become general property. How then will evil men and nations be controlled, and honest people be permitted to live their own honest lives and enjoy the fruits of their labors.

This problem, possibly greater than any we have ever faced, may be coming at us endwise. Within a generation, the world may have to be brought under intelligent and universal control—or else!

And who then will be sitting at the head of the table? Don't make us blush. Still, after thinking it over a little, we get a sort of feeling that maybe there won't be any head. There might be something, perhaps, like King Arthur's fabled Round Table.

Making Gold

Maybe the old-time alchemists were right after all. They spent much time and energy in trying to turn other substances into gold, while practical people told them if they wanted to get rich they should stick to manual labor. Scientists since then have said that the alchemists were on a hopeless quest, and that the whole idea was as

Today's Horoscope

Good fortune points toward the person celebrating a birthday today, because of high ideals, unyielding purpose and a will to achieve success regardless of obstacles. You are a natural leader; are loving, kind, domestic and scrupulously honest. No temptation, however strong, could alter your integrity. impossible as perpetual motion.

Atomic researches have indicated the contrary; and now that the atom has been split, the process is much easier. Mining experts say that already gold can be made from mercury and lead, and atom-splitting will make the process both easier and cheaper.

Gold might even become the cheapest commodity in the world, according to a Chilean chemist. We might realize the old-time foreigners' dream of America, as a land where streets were paved with gold. But drivers would probably like concrete better.

Lethal Gadgets

Gallup polls, like other tests of public opinion, are interesting but not infallible. A current poll is said to indicate that the American people, on the whole, think the development of the atomic bomb was a good thing. Many of us are not so sure, and many see a serious peril in the mere fact that such tremendous weapons can be made and used.

This is a problem worthy of thorough discussion. Never before in all human history have men possessed such weapons. Like so many of the other works of man, they can be used for either good or evil. Used on a big scale for an evil purpose, they might destroy our present civilization, setting the world back a hundred years or more. Their mere existence is a challenge to the conscience of the world. It can hardly be said that mankind in general sleeps more securely since lethal engines were produced. Now that we have them, a great many of us would feel safer if it were possible to get rid of them and forget about them.

What the world needs most is not more powerful means of destruction, but more friendliness, faith, love and cooperation among human beings.

Diet and Health

Causes of Heart Conditions

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

HEART conditions may arise from various causes. High blood pressure is responsible for certain types of heart disturbance. An excessive amount of secretion from the thyroid gland in the neck will also produce permanent heart damage. It is also a fact that in myxedema, which is a condition due to too little thyroid extract, heart disorders may arise.

It is often difficult to tell, in a patient whose heart disturbance has come from too little thyroid secretion, just what is producing the difficulty. In certain cases, the heart disorder interferes with the tests usually made to determine whether the thyroid gland is functioning properly.

Best Test

According to Doctor Thomas Hodge McGavack and his co-workers, of New York, one of the best tests for thyroid disturbance is to determine the amount of a certain substance in the blood known as cholesterol. Cholesterol is a substance present in all the tissues of the body. When there is a lack of thyroid secretion, the amount of cholesterol is decreased.

Heart disorders do not affect the amount of cholesterol in the blood. Thus, if a person, suspected of having a thyroid deficiency and heart trouble, is found to have a decrease of cholesterol in the blood, it is evident that the heart trouble is due to the thyroid gland disturbance.

Both Disorders

In treating patients who have both heart and thyroid disorder, the giving of thyroid extract is necessary in all instances, but the amount must be adjusted for each case. The preparation should be used only under the direction of the physician. He will have to regulate the dose depending upon the reaction which occurs from its use.

Treatment of the heart condition is more important than treatment of the thyroid gland trouble. But the response of the heart to treatment will be disappointing unless thyroid extract is also administered.

First Dose Small

The first dose of thyroid extract given is small. The speed with which the dose is increased depends upon the age of the patient, the duration of the disorder, and the amount of damage to the heart which has occurred.

It is always important for a person who has heart trouble to determine the cause before treatment is undertaken. If it is found that there is a thyroid deficiency, the use of thyroid extract in the proper dose is of extreme importance.

"LABOR AND LOVE"

Labor and love! there are no other laws

To rule the liberal action of that soul

Which fate hath set beneath thy brief control.

Or lull the empty fear that racks and gnaws.

Labor! then, like a rising moon, the cause

Of life shall light thine hour from pole to pole;

Thou shalt taste health of purpose, and the roll

Of simple joys unwind without a pause.

Love! and thy heart shall cease to question why

Its beating pulse was set to rock and rave;

Find but another heart this side the grave

To soothe and cling to—thou hast life's reply!

"MY SHRINE"

Here in my garden, my church and cathedral.

Here in my garden, my temple and shrine.

Stir of the morning or peace of the evening.

Color and beauty and fragrance and shine.

Come I, the worshiper, seeking communion,

Into my garden reverently tread.

Here is the altar, the candles, the incense,

Here is the table, the wine and the bread.

Take off thy sandals—come clean for thy meeting.

Worries and fears and their infinite kin

Leave at the portal—come into my garden.

Where the Divine and the mortal keep tryst;

Do come in.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

THAT HAPPINESS of Sandra's continued, even when she took Spenser down to Hudson's school in La Madera. It strengthened, in fact, for she had the satisfaction of learning that he was going to miss her. Up to the moment they said goodby she'd thought she would be the one to suffer loneliness.

"I say, Sandra," he said, "I may not be able to stick it. This place—y'know, Sandra—I—" The stuttering was so totally foreign to his usual clipped words that it proved his sudden dismay.

Elation over this evidence of his devotion gave the girl a greater amount of spirit than she usually had.

"Now look here, Spenser, I've gone to the expense of enrolling you in this school. You insisted on it. You're here and I want you to stay."

"Righto," he agreed, but the crisp word lacked its usual sound. He was looking at the red-haired woman with an odd expression. Sandra did not realize it, but her face, though stern, was pale and very beautiful beneath the brim of the hat Spenser had bought for her in Chicago.

"Isn't it strange?" he asked. "I've been your guest not even a month. Yet I feel as if I'd known you for a long, long time." He continued to stare at her, as if he were seeing someone else.

Yet his eyes were directly on her. If he keeps talking that way, I'll snatch him away from this school, this very instant and take him back to Copper Creek. She was thankful to see the dreamy expression being thrust from his face by one holding his more familiar importance.

"If you need me, let me know," he watched her nod affirmatively. "I'll come 'whoopin' an' hollerin', as Brody says." He grinned uncertainly, then suddenly snapped: "Cheerio," and walked away in a great hurry.

Sandra went back to the station wagon and got in beside Gordon Adams who had driven them down from the Mesquite Ranch.

"Well," he asked sarcastically, "how does it feel to be rid of your boss?"

She chuckled gaily and ignored his question. "How does it feel to see that you can't rile me?" she countered.

"I'm not trying to rile you." "Yes you are." Because the man's attention was taken up with driving she had an opportunity to study him. The desire to look at him was so strong that Sandra felt ridiculous.

Then warmth swept over her cheeks and the ridiculous sensation gave way to one of such happiness that she felt as if she were floating. "He looks just the way I like a man to look," she was saying to herself. Black hair. Black eyes. Burnished skin. It was amazing, the improvement caused by a few days of sobriety. He appeared strong, healthy, competent.

The station wagon was weaving along the desert trail beside the large resort inn, connected with the school, past young paloverde trees and ocotilla cactus bushes. They swung onto the wide pavement that led into town.

Adams drove swiftly now and remained silent. For a while Sandra also remained silent, just letting her recently discovered happiness sweep over her like waves of perfume. It was wonderful. Wonderful! She understood now, why that feeling of combined rapture and contentment had been with her the previous evening.

She abruptly repeated: "Yes, Gordon, you are trying to rile me. But now I know why."

The man's dark eyes left the highway and met hers briefly. The station wagon slowed, drew to the side of the road, stopped.

"Don't look at me that way," he commanded softly. "For heaven's sake, Sandra, don't do it."

"I can't help it." There was a serious little frown between her eyes. "I intend to look at you as often as possible. Gordon, I have fallen in love with you."

"And how many times have you been in love?"

"Only once. This is it."

Beneath the steadiness of her topaz eyes, the jauntiness he had forced into his question faded. "Sandra—you sweet kid—don't!" His words dropped to a mere whisper. "Don't fall in love with me."

"You're silly to ask that." Sandra also was whispering now. "The sound was husky and sweet. 'I have and I can't help it. I don't want to help it. It is wonderful—oh, Gordon, Gordon, why do you behave this way, when you are in love with me, too? I know you are. That is why you try to rile me. Why don't you admit you love me, Gordon?'" She took his hand, resting on the steering wheel, and clasped it between hers. "Why don't you?"

He pulled his hand away. "You're being influenced by the desert beauty, Sandra. It usually puts a spell on newcomers."

"I'd love you at the North Pole." "Stop talking love," he cried angrily. "Slushy female chatter. I don't like women. Haven't Brody told you?" He smacked the steering wheel a heavy blow. "I try to do you a favor. I haul you around and help you with your little Lord Four-Eyes. And for thanks I get embarrassing overtures. You are just an impulsive, foolish kid."

"I'm no kid. I'm 24."

"Well, you're impulsive and foolish!"

Sandra was not hurt. She gave a tender laugh. "Why won't you look at me, Gordon?"

The man's hands, tight around the steering wheel, grew tighter still. For several seconds he did not speak. "Because," he eventually admitted, "if I do I'll put my arms around you and start kissing you—"

"The dreamy quality left his voice. "And then everything will be in a worse mess than it already is!" He was shouting by the time he finished.

The gravel flew high as he put the station wagon into gear and slung it back on the highway. Neither spoke until they reached town, a distance of 12 miles.

"Do you know how to drive?" he asked, as they idled along Central avenue. "Could you get to the Mesquite?"

"No," the girl said meekly, glad of that ignorance. Intuition told her he'd desert her if he thought she could drive on up to the Copper Creek ranch.

He shrugged ungraciously. "Then I'll have to take you. Another thing, Sandra. As soon as you are up to it, I'd like you to take Spenser and leave the Mesquite."

"Naturally, I'll not make any such absurd promise."

The next morning he was not at the breakfast table. Sandra wished she had kept quiet about her love; that way she at least would not have frightened him back into the cliff house. For there was no doubt that was where he had gone. Brody, Estela, Belinda—all showed their disappointment. The red-haired girl was ashamed, bitter, unhappy. And, as a result, sick again.

Gordon Adams did not come down to the main ranch house until Thanksgiving, the official opening day. And then there was no opportunity for Sandra to get near him. He saw to that. Even if he had not, the other guests would have made intimate conversation impossible.

Fourteen came in one enormous party, all apparently acquainted with the Mesquite and its owner. All the excitement Brody had predicted was there. A small branding iron decorated bar was pushed into the big living room. Dinner was served in the real dining room.

After the meal there was dancing, both ballroom and exhibition dancing by the Indian boys.

Gordon Adams was everywhere, only never by Sandra. Luckily, Spenser was home from school, but he had so much catching-up to do with Belinda—and mainly Belinda's dog—that Sandra saw not a great deal of him. His vacation passed too swiftly, leaving her alone again.

She knew if she had asked the boy to stay, he would have, but that suggestion had to come from him. No matter how lonely she was, and she was lonely there amidst the other guests, who were so disgustingly healthy.

She felt better when Bob Wakeman came to the Mesquite.

Fox Terrier Starves Two Months Before Rescue

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—(P)—year old fox terrier who went A. W. O. L. in a railroad station here last June and then lay starving in an 11-foot deep hole in an abandoned ice house for more than two months, was on a train bound for California today, her health restored.

Dodie was being taken to Yuba City, Calif., last June by Mrs. John H. Ramsden from Newport, R. I., who had received word her soldier husband was coming home from the Philippines. Dodie escaped from an express company truck.

On August 26, John Zserdin recovered the dog in the pit and turned her over to the Anti-Cruelty Society. Director Dr. W. A. Young said a license tag dissuaded him from destroying the dog and he began the seemingly futile task of restoring Dodie to health. She was given transfusions of dog blood plasma and Dr. Young said her recovery "bordered on the miraculous." Later the society traced Dodie's ownership to Sgt. and Mrs. Ramsden and yesterday she was placed in a crate and put aboard a train to complete her journey to Yuba City.

WASHINGTON—His name might be Ivan, Jose or Wang. He is one of a group of young men who already have made a mark in his own country and has been chosen by the International Training Administration selection committee there to come to America and learn by two years of working in his particular field.

Having been met at the boat by an ITA representative, he is escorted to Washington. For the next few weeks he learns such things as how to negotiate revolving doors, trolleys, cafeteria lines. He is schooled in making change in American money, riding trains and buses, and introduced to a hundred or so other little things strange to the customs of his own land. He may spend a week or so brushing up on his English.

In the meantime, International Training Administration, Inc., is busy clearing him with the state department, immigration, selective service, the treasury (so he won't have to pay income tax), the labor unions, if he is going to work where labor is organized. His program for the next two years also is being worked out. No travel agency gives more complete service than ITA's staff in making all arrangements for his protracted stay in the city, town or village where he is to work.

Comes the day when Ivan, Jose or Wang is to leave Washington. He may go to the west coast, to the oil fields in Louisiana, to Detroit or almost any place in the land. Wherever it is, it will be his home for the next two years and there he will learn by working, watching, studying and being shown all those intricacies which go to make up the "know-how" of American business.

Mrs. Emery Lynch Installed As Head of Gradale Sorority At Services Thursday Eve

Dinner at Sheridan Restaurant Enjoyed by Group Before They Adjourned to Club Rooms Where Installation Ceremonies Were Given

The installation dinner on Thursday evening and the services which followed brought to a fitting close a most successful and eventful year of the Alpha Chapter of Gradale Sorority in Washington C. H. and was the beginning of another important year with plans already in progress for several activities.

Assembling at Sheridan's Restaurant in the mezzanine dining room at 6:30 members enjoyed a tasty and deftly prepared three course fried chicken dinner. Two long tables covered in snowy white and decorated with large colorful bouquets of dahlias, asters and other bright summer flowers, were used for the serving. Pretty place-cards were favors.

Following the dinner, the group adjourned to the Record-Herald clubrooms where everything was in readiness for the installation of officers conducted by the outgoing primus, Miss Jean Sexton. The entire service was by candlelight. Officers to be installed were seated facing a small table, covered entirely in black, which held a single tall white candle and an open Bible. As each girl took the oath of office she lighted her candle from the central light, representing Christ.

Those installed and their offices are: Mrs. Emery Lynch as primus, Mrs. Robert Fortier, as pro-primus; Mrs. Paul Thornhill as quæstor; Mrs. George Robinson, Jr., as tribune; and Miss Christine Switzer as state corresponding tribune. Mrs. Jack Hagerty is local corresponding tribune.

At the close Miss Sexton expressed her sincere appreciation to her fellow officers and to the members for their splendid cooperation and helpfulness during the past year and complimented Mrs. Emery Lynch, incoming primus and the new officers and urged each member to continue their support during the year to follow. Outgoing officers are Miss Sexton, primus; Mrs. Ben Timmons, pro-primus; Mrs. Dale Ward, tribune; Mrs. Emery Lynch, quæstor; Mrs. Keith Garringer, local corresponding tribune and Mrs. William Thompson, state corresponding tribune.

Mrs. Ben Timmons, state tribune, told of the sorority's state call convention to be held in North Canton on October 6 and 7, stating that the theme would be "Western." Miss Sexton and Mrs. Lynch were elected as delegates, and several others plan to attend also.

The new primus announced an officers' meeting for next Wednesday evening, September 26, at her home on East Paint Street when plans for the coming year will be completed. The first fall meeting of the sorority will be held at the clubrooms on Monday October 8 with Mrs. William Thompson as chairman, Mrs. Richard Rankin and Mrs. Wilbur Wilson assisting.

Points earned by the members for the past year and Gradale bulletins were given out.

Those attending the affair were Mrs. Emery Lynch, Mrs. Ben Timmons, Mrs. Paul Thornhill, Mrs. George Robinson, Jr., Mrs. Dale Ward, Mrs. Robert Fortier, Mrs. William Thompson, Mrs. Maurice Moyer, Mrs. Richard Rankin, Miss Jane Sexton, Miss Christine Switzer, Miss Marjorie Rapp, Miss Marcia Hingley, Miss Cassette Larrimer, and Miss Jo Ann Crouse.

As planned, they will consist of an invocation by a local pastor; a greeting by Miss Ruth Benjamin, curator of the Museum; a response by Mrs. Arthur T. Hafela of East Orange, New Jersey, president of the Liberty District of the Federation, which comprises the states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; the reading of the text of "Home, Sweet Home" by a villager; the presentation of the tablet by Mrs. Guy Patterson Gannett, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs; its acceptance by Mayor Judson L. Bannister of East Hampton, and the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by East Hampton school children.

SEWER SYSTEM IS THE CITY'S CHIEF HEADACHE

City Manager Stambaugh Says Efforts To Find Trouble Fruitless

"The city's disposal plant and sewer system generally is the worst headache we have," declared City Manager W. L. Stambaugh in discussing the deplorable situation of the sewer system here.

Stambaugh spoke of fruitless efforts to locate the source of a vast amount of ground water which is entering the interceptor sewer that starts along Paint Creek near the Oakland Avenue bridge and empties into the "well" at the pumping house of the sewage disposal plant east of Elm Street, where pumpage costs are double what he said they should be.

He said that for years the condition of the intercepting sewer had grown worse and worse, until more than as much again water as normally flows through the intercepting sewer is keeping the pumps busy at the plant.

Stambaugh mentioned many repairs that had been made where big inflows of water were discovered, but said it is now apparent that much more extensive work must be done to halt the flow of ground water into the sewer.

He said one workman who was employed on the sewer said that at one point where quicksand was encountered, it was impossible to cement the sewer joints. That place is now being sought to ascertain if it is one of the main sources of incoming surplus water.

One reason for the bad condition of the disposal plant at the present time, he said, is the fact that one of the pumps at the digester tank had broken some two months ago, and no parts have been obtained up to the present.

This halted pumpage of sludge, it seems, and accounts for no gas being generated to operate the gas engine that would save a large amount in power each month.

Stambaugh said plans are being made to check the intercepting sewer from one manhole to another, and to ascertain, if possible, what sewers emptying into it are carrying excessive amounts of water into the big interceptor.

It is Stambaugh's opinion that no satisfactory results will be obtained in the important matter of sewage disposal until the storm and sanitary sewers are separated, and an adequate disposal plant built.

He expressed belief that many of the cemented joints of the interceptor may have broken loose, thus permitting water to flow into the drain much as it does into a tile ditch.

"It is strictly an engineering problem and may prove an expensive one to solve," he said.

One pump is run continuously at the disposal plant and a second pump is operated part of the time he said, where normally one pump would be sufficient to handle the sewage, operated only part of the time.

Thus far, council has not acted upon the application of Paul A. Uhlmann and Associates of Columbus, who asked for the job of revamping the sewage system of the city to make it workable.

Uhlmann has the contract for making plans for the supplemental disposal plant, planned early in the war, but discontinued by reason of inability to obtain steel and other vital materials.

Original plans for the addition to the plant will probably be radically revamped to meet changed conditions, it is intimated.

INTEREST SHOWN IN NEW FIRM'S OPENING

Moore and Briggs Furniture Store Announces Plans

Much interest was manifested by the public in the official opening Friday of the Moore and Briggs Furniture store. The opening sale is to be continued through Saturday.

The new firm composed of Hubert Moore and Wendell Briggs recently took over the Economy Furniture Store formerly operated by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Craddock and have added many new lines of household furniture and equipment to make it very attractive and inviting. Nationally advertised furniture, bedding, floor covering and appliances are being carried by the store.

The store hours are announced daily as 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. and on Saturdays from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

The store management announces that the firm also is entering the field of electrical appliances and will carry the latest models in this line as soon as available.

Assisting the proprietors in handling the business will be Charles Mershon and Miss Virginia Van Buskirk. Both have been identified with the present firm since it took over the business on August 23.

The new firm announces that it recognizes there is a big field of opportunity in this business in this locality and will make every effort to meet the demands of the public here.

Moore who at present resides in Wilmington expects to move to this city in the near future. He is an experienced furniture dealer and is also identified with the manufacturing plant at Leesburg which specializes in kitchen dinette sets. Briggs, also of Wilmington, recently was discharged from the armed forces. He also expects to move his family here in the near future.

SANDUSKIANS IRKED BY 'JUNIOR MISS'

Washingtonians will have a chance to see for themselves what has irked the Sandusky "Letters from Home Club."

Protesting what it termed "degenerative dialog" in the film "Junior Miss" which is playing here Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Fayette Theater, the club sent copies of a protest resolution to Twentieth Century Fox, the Associated Press reported.

The club stressed in its resolution that Sandusky and its widely-known Cedar Point are not "dead places" as it said the "Junior Miss" film insinuated.

Mrs. W. Harrison Pratt is president and Albert Pierpoint executive secretary of the club which mails a six-page mimeographed letter monthly to service men and women.

The interceptor, with by-pass arrangements during excessive flow of water, saying the sewer drains farm lands for a long distance north of the city.

It is one of the arguments for separation of the sanitary and storm sewers.

JAMES E. ADAMS KILLED BY AUTO NEAR THIS CITY

Three Companions Have Close Call on Highway During Dense Fog

James E. Adams, 33, discharged from service recently after 4 1-2 years in the armed forces, was instantly killed at 1:15 A. M. Friday while he was walking with traffic in a dense fog, 120 feet east of the Loudner Barbecue on the CCC highway just west of Washington C. H.

He was struck by an automobile driven by Maynard Dowler, who reported at police headquarters here soon after the accident, and said he did not see Adams and his companions, due to the fog, until the car was upon Adams.

Adams sustained a fractured skull, broken right arm, and internal injuries which apparently caused instant death.

With Adams at the time were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sord, S. Hinde Street, and Miss Gladys Neil, Lorain, who escaped serious injury by leaping, although Miss Neil was knocked down when Adams' body was hurled from the highway into the ditch.

Sheriff Orland Hays, who had been to the barbecue by the time he said some to have been a "free for all fight," met the four pedestrians not over a minute before Dowler's car hit Adams, and said that he instantly thought of the danger they were in by walking over nearly half of the road, headed toward this city, and in a fog so dense that it was almost impossible to follow the highway.

He was at the Barbecue investigating the row when the fatal accident occurred. Hays said the fighters apparently had fled before he arrived. He is still probing the affair, as well as making further inquiry into the death of Adams.

The Klever ambulance was called and removed Adams' body from the roadside ditch where it had been hurled by the automobile.

Other members of the party were taken to Dr. J. H. Persinger's office where their injuries were found to be of a minor nature.

Adams had been employed here the past two months after receiving his discharge from the armed forces.

He had been living at the home of his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Matson.

Adams formerly lived in northern Ohio, and his body was removed to the Eichelholtz Funeral Home in Bellefontaine, Friday, where funeral services will be held, the time not being fixed.

Adams was discharged from the army May 31 after 4 1-2 years' service most of which was in the southwest Pacific war zone. He wore four battle stars and a good conduct medal.

Surviving are his widow, this city, a son, James, Jr., 9, also of Washington C. H. and his mother, Mrs. Frank Mortell, Bellefontaine.

Mrs. Wilbur Keith Barger, 637 Yeoman Street, received a phone call from her husband, Sgt. Barger, Friday morning telling her of his arrival in Boston on the William and Mary Victory, and will soon be home.

Among those discharged on the point system from Camp Atterbury, Ind., at the separation center there, last week, were T-5 Ralph W. Murdock, 1003 Lakeview Avenue; Staff-Sgt. Dwight B. Rhoads, 326 East Market Street; T-4 Walter L. Cooper, 423 Third Street.

Sgt. John H. Wyatt, U. S. Marine Corps, and son of Mrs. Sarah Wyatt, 325 Fifth Street, city, came home this week to spend a 30 day furlough after having spent 34 months in the South Pacific.

After his furlough visit with his mother and friends, Sgt. Wyatt reports to Philadelphia, Pa., for reassignment.

Lt. Charles Baldwin has been granted an extension of 15 days to his 30 day leave which he has been spending with his wife and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Baldwin, after 19 months overseas duty.

They are spending the time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wert C. Bush, and in Columbus at the Baldwin home.

Harry V. Flint, seaman second class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flint, 408 Western Avenue, has completed his recruit training and will be granted leave from the Naval Training Center, Sampson, N. Y.

Upon his return to Sampson, he will be eligible for further assignment which may qualify him for a petty officer rating.

Former First Sgt. J. W. Campbell, son of Mrs. J. Porter Campbell, North Fayette Street, is in Mt. Sterling today with his wife and child, having been discharged at Camp Lee, Va., Sept. 15. He reported to the Fort George G. Meade, Md., separation center for discharge before coming home.

His future plans are as yet, indefinite. He served with the army for two years and eight months, and was discharged because he was over age.

CITY PURCHASE OF EQUIPMENT MAY MEET HITCH

Civilian Defense Material To Be Returned To Be Re-sold

There may be a hitch in the city's purchase of Civilian Defense fire equipment.

That hitch is this: Costly air raid equipment installed under the war-time program must go back to the government to be sold by the surplus properties board, Ralph H. Stone, director of the Ohio Defense Council, said today.

The city actually has not purchased the 500 gallon pumper, firemen's pants, 1,200 feet of hose and some ladders from the Civilian Defense yet—but it has filed a form with the department of commerce indicating its desire to purchase the equipment, Walter L. Stambaugh, the city manager, explained.

George Hall, fire chief, Glen B. Rodgers, custodian of the equipment, and Stambaugh made the application, the city manager said. The price was set at $832.

While Stone said it was "ridiculous" to try to reassemble all of the approximately $2,000,000 worth of federal property distributed by the Office of Civilian Defense in Ohio, he said such items as 500 gallon pumpers, casualty station and medical team equipment must be returned for sale by the surplus properties board. Civilian Defense workers may keep small equipment such as wardens' helmets and armbands, however. No armbands were issued here.

Cities, villages and charitable institutions have priority to purchase the equipment before it is offered at a general sale, Stone said. Basing his statement on that sentence, Stambaugh said he thought the city would be able to purchase the pumper and other items.

Hall said the equipment which the city had applied to buy probably would not come under the COD ruling. However, ten helmets and 40 fire extinguishers also used in the Civilian Defense program here might be returnable, but he wasn't sure.

RECORD-HERALDS FOR JAP PRISONERS

Lt. Kenneth Shoemaker Sends Them from Navy Plane

A Washington C. H. naval lieutenant—Lt. (jg) Kenneth S. Shoemaker in fact—was there when Navy planes parachuted supplies to 397 Japanese prisoners of war on Hokkaido Island.

Lt. Shoemaker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Shoemaker of the Greenfield Road. He has been stationed on the USS Hoggatt Bay since February. Previously, he served 22 months on the Hornet and has been in the service for three and a half years.

When the reconnaissance plane sent out by the carrier on which Lt. Shoemaker is serving contacted the prisoners, they radioed what they wanted. Among those wanted items were newspapers—and Lt. Shoemaker sent some Record-Heralds to the prisoners, probably the first newspapers to reach the men interned there, including 283 British, 55 Dutch, 51 Americans and eight Australians.

Ever see a telephone man plow?

He has this advantage of the farmer in that he plows, plants and covers up all in one operation. He uses a plow-like machine which lays a specially insulated telephone wire in the ground to replace pole lines in those parts of the country suited to this type of construction.

Bell System engineers, constantly on the alert for better and cheaper ways of doing things, developed this machine, just as they worked out new construction methods and found new materials.

These new methods and materials will make it possible to bring more and better telephone service to the Ohio rural areas we serve.

We are glad that again we are able to take up the work stopped by the war in 1942. By using the many plans made in the meantime, and taking advantage of all these telephone developments, we will be able to give farmers in Ohio Bell rural territories the kind of telephone service they have a right to expect at reasonable rates.
